

Kincorth SK

Red Lake United Church and Cemeteries Kincorth, Saskatchewan. NE 33-11-28-W3

There are two cemeteries on the same quarter of land about one half mile apart. The church at this location was in use until the late 1930's then in 1939 it was moved into Golden Prairie, Saskatchewan, and was home to a United Church congregation until the 1970's. There were basically only two families in the congregation before the move to Golden Prairie, the Anhorns and Siegles. The congregation using the second cemetery held their worship services in area homes or the community hall at Kincorth. There are several unmarked graves in both cemeteries, records are not available as at April 08, 1997.

One small cemetery is located on the south side of the number one highway two and one quarter miles west of the Kincorth road. As at April 08, 1997, the plot is fenced, fence needs attention as does the native grass in the enclosure. The only marker is a four foot high cross built out of 1/4 inch by 4 inch metal. One can detect the wooden frames surrounding four graves, there are probably about ten burials here. We could not find the second cemetery, there is a good chance the small plot has been cultivated.

Sources indicate the following interred here:

Esslinger Johann born June 20, 1893, at Ackermann, Russia, died when injured while attempting to bury a rock November 1917, of Andreas Esslinger and Dorothea Nitschke.

Lutheran Cemetery Kincorth, Saskatchewan.

The property for this cemetery was donated by Johann Oddan, a monument erected in 1994 by the families of Johann and Julia Oddan in memory of the community members laid to rest here lists all those interred at this site.

This two acre plot is located on the east side of the Kincorth road about one half mile south of the CPR mainline tracks, on the SW 12-12-28-W3. The plot is surrounded by a good barbed wire fence, all posts are painted white. The following information was taken from the grave markers and monument April 08, 1997. There are eighteen markers with legible data. This Lutheran church was affiliated with the Joint Synod of Ohio.
